

Consider a Climate-Friendly Bank

350.org investigated banks throughout the world that invest in the fossil fuel industry, specifically: coal, oil, tar sands, arctic, off shore, fracking, and liquified natural gas.

The top offenders in the US are:

- JP Morgan Chase
- Citi Bank
- Bank Of America
- Wells Fargo
- CIBC
- Morgan Stanley
- Goldman Sachs
- BMO

One small action you can take is to find some other place to do your banking. If you have a financial advisor, ask if any of your portfolio's investments filter for environmentally friendly companies. Make your money work for your values.

Donating To Environmental Action Organizations

These organizations are recognized for their highest impact. Those that are starred* (in alphabetical order) focus their main efforts on climate action. Search them and consider making a donation, signing petitions, etc.

*Climate Hawks Vote <https://climatehawksvote.com>

*Climate Reality Project <https://www.climaterealityproject.org/>
<https://350.org>

Earth Justice <https://earthjustice.org>

Environmental Defense Fund EDF <https://www.edf.org>

Environmental Working Group <https://www.ewg.org>

Friends of the Earth <https://foe.org>

Greenpeace USA <https://www.greenpeace.org/usa>

League of Conservation Voters <https://www.lcv.org>

National Resource Defense Council <https://www.nrdc.org>

National Wildlife Federation <https://nwf.org>

Nature Conservancy <https://preserve.nature.org>

Ocean Conservancy <https://oceanconservancy.org>

Sierra Club <https://www.sierraclub.org>

STAND.earth <https://stand.earth>

Student Conservation Association <https://thesca.org>

Union of Concerned Scientists <https://www.ucs.org>

World Wildlife Fund <https://www.worldwildlife.org>